"With low entrance salaries and small chance for promotion," said an official, "the public school system can ecure only the most inexperienced clerk. Weeks and months are then spent in his training, but as experience is gained and the clerk grows more valuable he yields to the attractive offer of positions outside the public school system, and instead of becoming an asset, the cost of his training becomes a liability which is ever increasing."

Further action will be taken at a mass meeting which 3,000 are expected to attend Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in the Avenue Grand Theater. Pennsylvania avenue southeast. At this meeting, which will be under the auspices of the machinists' local union, arrangements will be made for another formal protest against the wage board award, which will embody the specific complaints of the machinist employes of the yard.

The resolution adopted at yesterday's meeting made the following points of disagreement with the award of the wage board:
